DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Applicant's election with traverse of the restriction in the reply filed on 11-30-04 is acknowledged. The traversal is on the ground(s) that the claims should be examined together. This is not found persuasive because group III is directed to specific structure not required for groups I and II. Group II, upon further consideration, is rejoined with group I.

The requirement is still deemed proper and is therefore made FINAL.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 9 and 12-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Marcou et al. [US 5,594,398] in view of Whipple et al. [US 6,392,513] and Foster, Jr. [US 4,851,951].

Regarding claims 9 and 12-13, Marcou et al. disclose a receptacle device for protection against ground faults comprising:

Application/Control Number: 10/730,032 Page 3

Art Unit: 2832

- an upper cover [12] including electrical output plugs [16, 16'], a fault test button [26] and a reset button [28], the output plugs comprising phase line openings and neutral line openings;

- a base [14] including a pair of electrical input couplings [23, 23'] and electrical outlet plugs [16, 16', figure 5];
- electrical circuit components coupled to the electrical input couplings and electrical outlet plugs for detecting a fault current [figure 12];
 - an electromagnetic latch [78];
 - a locking means [28b] coupled to the reset button and electromagnetic latch;
- a reset button bias member [82] located below the reset button having two openings [82a, 82a'] extending from a top thereof and a central opening [82] for the locking means.

Marcou et al. disclose everything claimed except the device providing arc fault protection, an arc fault test means and a pair of locking means extending through the reset button bias means.

Whipple et al. disclose a circuit interrupter having a ground fault and arc fault detection circuit [27, 29] with test means for each [45, 49] activated by a button [9].

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to include an arc fault detection/test button means in the interrupter of Marcou et al., as suggested by Whipple et al., in order to protect against arc faults and ground faults.

Foster, Jr. discloses a reset button including a pair of column shaped engagement members [figure 2] cooperating with an electromagnetic latch [60].

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use the engagement member design of Foster, Jr. in Marcou et al., as modified, for the purpose of providing even force distribution.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 1-8 are allowed.

Claims 10-11 and 14-15 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
